My Coaching Philosophy

Introducing skating to anyone wanting to give the sport a try is always rewarding

I believe coaches can have a big influence on their students they coach and a positive role model is something I try to provide to each and every skater on the ice

As a Skating Coach I try to encourage skaters to set realistic goals and then do all I can as their coach to help them achieve them. During this process it is always my hope they will also learn and develop important life skills as well as skating skills. Their time at the arena should be positive, productive and provide good memories.

Coaching is a challenging job which I have been working at for many years. The sport of skating has changed/evolved over the years and continues to be challenging for the coaches, skaters, and clubs

When skaters progress and achieve their goals then my goals as a coach have also been achieved.
